I wonder what those seagulls do to fish. An ordinary stick of dynamite exploded in the water kills all the fish in the neighborhood and bombs and torpedoes must cause a terrific destruction of marine life, but I have never seen any mention of it, probably because it is unimportant compared with the destruction of human life involved. We will probably learn something about it when target practice begins on bomb ranges in Gulf waters.—Don McLeod in Apalachicola Times.

THE BLANDING CASE

For many months there has been an aura of suspicion that too much money was spent in buying a site for Camp Blanding and in building barracks and other necessary facilities for an army of 60,000 men near Starke, Fla.

A committee of the United States senate finally is making an inquiry into the situation which we hope will bring to light the truth and dissipate the fog of rumors that have been bruited about Florida and in Washington ever since construction first was started at the camp.

It is, of course, known that the cost of construction exceeded original estimates by more than double. Complaint has been made that there were numerous other sites available in Florida where it would not have been necessary to fill in large areas of swamp-land.

Maybe so. And it so, this senate inquiry should bring out the facts. Obviously, some engineering figures in the original estimates were all wet. Perhaps, there was a lot of boneheadedness somewhere along the line, as one senator remarked yesterday.

Whatever it be, the people are entitled to know who to blame.

MULES IN DEBATE

Representative Strayhorn and Senator Beall have illustrated debate with the lowly but reliable mule. Representative Strayhorn's mule was one he used to ride and it kicked up a lot of fuss until it found things were not as bad as it had feared. Senator Beall's mule belonged to a neighbor and used to run headlong into fences and barns, not because it was loco but just because it didn't give a . . . —Tallahassee Democrat.

TUPELO HONEY

Florida's tupelo honey harvest, confined to the famed Apalachicola River valley, began this week.

Producers are of the opinion the crop this season will be somewhat less than in some years past, due principally to adverse weather conditions during the peak of the producing period, which means during the height of the blossoming of the tupelo gum trees.

Utilities Ready—

imposing the slightest strain on our Government or adding to the American people's tax burdens.

"Today $14,000,000,000 of private capital are invested in the electric power industry—translated into generating plants and thousands of miles of interconnected transmission lines. Separate companies could not have developed this national network by themselves. Only by expanding under the common ownership and coordinated plans of building company corporations was the industry, through the pooled resources of finance, manpower and engineering knowledge, able to create this nationwide shield of power which is today one of America's strongest defense weapons.

"Think what an enormous item this would be in our national defense budget, if these vital facilities had to be built by the Government. More important, it would require years of extraordinary effort, as well as billions of dollars, to duplicate these power sources and lines. But they are ready today, not five years from now. They are already performing their duty."

Texas Town Claims—

by any other town or locality. In other words we think we have the right to feel that it is our trademark through priority and that it would be the strangest thing for other towns not to use it. We are sure that Mayor Dulany's section is a perfectly marvelous one and that it was just a coincidence on his part that he used our slogan when he was interviewed. We hope that both you and Mayor Dulany may have the pleasure of visiting our section which is peopled by descendants of very fine old American families. The population is more than 99% native born Americans.

There is also a good story back of this slogan which was originated by the late Will N. Harrison, a loyal citizen who some forty years ago used the phrase in tiny letters on his business cards. In 1916 the unique statement on one of his cards attracted the attention of President Woodrow Wilson and precipitated a pleasant conference in Kansas City where the President was making his speech on "Preparedness" prior to our entry into World War I. Following the publicity given that incident the Greenville Chamber of Commerce officially adopted the slogan.

Womanless Wedding Scheduled May 30

The old saying more fun than a barrel of monkeys won't be created a little bit on Friday night, May 30, when the Canal Point Parent-Teacher association sponsors a "Womanless Wedding" at the school auditorium. The play always attracts a capacity crowd in any town where it is presented.

If you can imagine a wedding to be conducted with men taking all parts, then you have a slight idea of what it's all about. Handsome brutes in evening gowns—high heeled shoes and all the necessary accessories—will be a sight worth seeing.

The cast will be announced in next week's issue of this newspaper. Watch for the names of those who are going to take part in this marvellous presentation of scolded bliss. You are in for a splendid evening of entertainment and the cast is to be so small that you won't miss from your week's allowance.

Reduce Limit On Black Bass Catch

Tallahassee, May 22.—The House voted today, 66 to 14, to levy annual licenses on fresh water sports fishermen, except those who fish only with pole and line within the county of their residence.

If the Senate agrees, rod and reel fishermen will pay $1 for a Statewide license. If they want to do pole and line fishing, they will buy another license for $1. Pole and line fishermen who go out of their residence county will pay $1 license.

The present license for fresh water fishing is $2 for a Statewide license, with no license required for fishing only in the county of legal residence.

Rep. Simpson of Jefferson, who sponsored the license revision, said the Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission's annual revenues would be increased about $40,000. The House passed, 87 to 0, a Senate-approved bill reducing the day's bag limit on black bass from 12 to 8, and trimming the maximum legal catch of smaller species of fresh water fish, such as bream, from 30 to 20.

Passage 56, to 10, was accorded a bill by Rep. Dowda of Putnam authorizing confiscation of motor boats and other fishing equipment if a boat contains more than 16 black bass.

Rep. Johnson of Lake steered to passage, 67 to 1, another bill reducing from $2.50 to $1.50 the annual license charged for renting boats used in fresh water fishing.

Summary of Legislative Activity

By Clyde J. Baser
Fla. News Service, Staff Writer

Tallahassee, May 22.—Finance, or the lack of them, was the main topic of discussion in the legislature last week and probably will continue on through this week and perhaps for the remainder of the session.

Governor Holland's long-awaited recommendations for raising sufficient revenue to bridge the $5,000,000 gap between income and outgo were finally presented to the legislature. They contained no startling innovations and were, on the whole, hailed by legislators and taxpayer groups as sound and constructive.

His first recommendation was an increase of $10 auto tags to $15. He called this tax the fairest and most certain tax available and pointed out that no new collection machinery would be necessary. He also asserted that in view of the fact that Florida levies no personal property tax on cars, the increase would not make the tax paid on automobiles out of proportion to those collected in other states.

The legislature, however, adjourned over the weekend without taking any definite action on this proposal. Considerable opposition has been advanced to the hike in the cost of lower priced tags without a corresponding increase in those in the upper brackets. The probability is that a general increase will be made in all tags.

The school lobby won't like his recommendation that the request for an increase of $250 per teaching unit for the next two years be turned down. However, most students of state affairs recognize that an increase as requested by the Governor in tag prices will fill the hole left in school finances by the repeal of the gross receipts tax, that if county finances are strengthened according to his recommendations, more county money will be available for schools, and finally that under present financial circumstances in the state the schools are the weak neighbor at home who needs additional money they may want or require.

In other parts of his message he followed the recommendations of the Brookings Institute. They include: outright sale of tax delinquent land after one year with homesteads being sold after two years; assessments based on a full 100 percent valuation instead of varying assessments in various counties; limit on homestead exemption to the part of the building actually used and occupied for homestead purposes; an improved method of collecting intangible taxes; and a stricter collection of intangible taxes, with 25 percent going to the counties to provide an incentive to local tax collectors and assessors for efficient enforcement.

Summed up, his financial recommendations are aimed at meeting necessary state expenses as far as possible, with no claim that the state's budget will be balanced, and putting local finances strictly up to local taxing bodies after providing more efficient means for their assessment and collection.

A new tax of one percent on stock inventories over $1000 has been proposed in the house and apparently has the support of both independent merchants and chain store officials. This will replace the gross receipts tax; however, as practically all stores turn their stocks over several times a year, food stores and some others having a more frequent turn-over, this tax will in the course of a year be considerably less than one-half of one percent levied on sales under the gross receipts tax.

A new graduated tax on chain stores based on the number in the chain in the United States rather than in Florida, is also proposed. This tax ranges from $10 on one store to $200 on each store in chains having more than 100 stores in the United States.

Several weeks ago this summary pointed out that there were definite indications that the legislature is in a spending mood. Two events last week certainly support that assertion. First, the senate passed its appropriation measure in the sum of $11,708,816, an increase of $1,370,462 in State expenditures, and the house approved a bill will probably be equally as liberal.

Second, both the house and the senate passed the bill creating the Florida State Improvement Commission with unlimited power to spend unlimited sums on "self-liquidating projects for public use and benefit." It awaits only the approval of the Governor to become a law, and as it had the approval of both the Governor and the chairman of the State Road Department, there is no good reason to suppose the Governor will withhold his approval.

Advocates of this commission have tried to reassure some who are viewing with alarm the broad scope of authority granted to the Finance Commission by saying that the next legislature can repeal the act if it proves unsatisfactory. But as the first proposal which will probably be acted upon by this commission is the spending of some $2 million dollars for a four-lane highway down the east coast and a branch to Tampa, with several other millions also in immediate prospect on projects deemed necessary, repealing the act after certificates of indebtedness of 50 to 60 million dollars have been issued will be like trying to unscramble eggs by legislative enactment.

Considering possible benefits, the appropriation of $50,000 for a state lobby in Washington will be generally approved. Another sales tax bill was killed. Sales tax bills seem to have more lives than cats. Two more gambling licensing acts were killed; a tabulation of the number of similar bills introduced would be interesting. It now looks as though the new congressman will be elected at large. A ten million dollar pension bill has been brought to the floor of the house, a bill granting $15 per month pensions to farmers who have worked 40 years has been introduced. And the legislature has made its usual gesture toward the Townsends by recommending to Congress the enactment of the Townsend Bill.

Holland Sees Gas Tax Permanently Settled By Law

Tallahassee, Fla., May 15.—Four bills and a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to redivide the gas tax problem will be permanently solved.

He expressed gratitude to the State Association of County Commissioners, which at the beginning of the session backed a rival gas tax plan, and to both houses of the legislature.

"Several worthwhile objectives have been accomplished by passage of the bills," he declared. "The additional credits set up will take care with certainty of needs of all counties for the first two years before the amendment, if ratified, can become effective."

"Under the redefinition of a gas tax surplus, as well as the added direct appropriation for roads, the next two years will see a material enlargement of the road building program and much improved maintenance."

"Adoption of the constitutional amendment will mean that the problem will have been permanently solved."

The new program gives the state road department four, instead of the present three, cents of the tax on a gallon of gasoline and cuts the county's down from three to two cents of the tax.

It gives the counties credits for money they have spent on all roads turned over to the state through this session of the legislature.

The four bills signed Tuesday will become effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year, July 1.

Governor Holland's Proclamation Designates May 30 Through June 7 Florida Defense Registration Week; To Enroll Workers

Tallahassee, May 22. In a proclamation issued today, Governor Holland designated the period of May 30 to June 7 as Florida Defense Registration Week and called upon all loyal, patriotic citizens of the state to go to such places as may have been set apart for that purpose by their respective county defense councils, to enroll their names and to offer their services for such duties as may be assigned them in connection with State Defense programs.

In his proclamation, Governor Holland called attention to the fact that under the state of emergency proclaimed by the President of the United States and recommended by the legislature of the State of Florida in the act creating the State Defense Council, it has become the duty and the privilege of all loyal citizens of Florida to contribute, as each citizen is able, to the volunteer services as may be calculated to promote the safety of the State and Nation against the threat of aggression and to insure the security of civilization and democracy throughout the world.

Attention is called to the efforts of the State Defense Councils and the several County Defense Councils to enroll the services of such volunteers through the registration of all citizens, both men and women 15 years of age or over, for such duties as may be called upon to perform in furtherance of State and National security. This registration is essential to efficient organized emergency activities, in the judgment of the Governor, in order that the capacities, skills and inclinations of all available persons may be catalogued, classified and assigned to appropriate duties when needed to further the defense program.

As set forth in the Governor's proclamation and as announced by the State Defense Council in letters to all officers of County Defense Councils, the registration thus authorized will begin May 29 to run through June 7. The opening day will be Memorial Day, generally observed as a day of rest and with great patriotic significance and because of that significance will afford wonderful opportunity for assembling prospective registrants to visit the places designated by County Defense Councils in places where registry books will be kept for the convenience of the people of that community or district, thus making registration as easy as possible.

The chairman of the various county councils has been authorized to register only those boys and girls and men and women in their respective jurisdictions as will do so voluntarily. No pressure is to be brought to bear upon any who may hesitate when asked to sign their names and list their qualifications. "We want it distinctly understood," said Executive Director Burr of the State Defense Council, "that we want the names only of those who will sign the registration books or sheets of their own free will and offer their services to their country as volunteers, should they be called upon to serve at any time during the existing emergency, no undue pressure. No undue pressure."

Some sort of a salute to Florida. He pointed out that the speaker informed his companions that they were now approaching Miami on the shores of Biscayne Bay. He described it in detail, spoke familiarly of such developments as Coral Gables and Miami Beach, he pointed out the Hialeah and Tropical Park race tracks and gave statistics as to the city's amazing growth.

Here a musical background drowned out both plane and voices and the strains of "Moon Over Miami" could be heard. In a corollary voice a woman sang the words in such perfect English and with such true American rhythm as to completely disarm any belief that it could be foreign in origin. Then the song ended and the plane journey resumed. Miami had been left behind and the speaker was describing the Overseas Highway to Key West. He pointed out Matamoras Key and related the tragedy that occurred there. He told the history of Key West and impressed upon his listeners its strategic position as the southernmost American city.

Swinging about, the plane began its journey northward, which gave the spokesman an opportunity to tell of the Everglades and the development around the Lake. Turning west, his next objective point was Ft. Myers. "Home of Edison," he said, "City of Palms." (He could have been reading from a Chamber of Commerce booklet). Then up the west coast he gave equally accurate descriptions of Sarasota: "Ringling's have their winter quarters here, you know, and that building on the right is the famous Ringling Art Museum." Now we cut across the bay to have a look at St. Petersburg. It is called the "Sunshine City" and one of the newspapers here is given away every day that the sun fails to shine.

Now and then a plane companion would break in with an inquiry: "Isn't that another large city across the water?" was asked. The guide on this strange aerial journey seemed to know all the answers, for he promptly replied: "Yes, that is Tampa, famed for its cigar industry and its Gasparilla Carnival. It is connected with St. Petersburg by the Gandy Bridge. We are flying directly over it right now."

Turning east, the route covered a good portion of central Florida; Plant City, Lake Wales and Lakeland were mentioned as clearly visible below. The Bok Singing Tower was given a most detailed description as the imaginary plane was supposed to be circling above this Shrine and Sanctuary. Next came Orlando, a brief mention of citrus production and the position of this central Florida city in relation to it. Ocala and Silver Springs were not overlooked, although they were thoroughly "looked over", and here again the description might have been taken bodily from one of "Shorty" Davidson's printed booklets.

Next came Gainesville and the University, then the conversation died out again and a chorus of male-voices began singing our own Florida song. Continuing north as far as Lake City, which was briefly mentioned, the plane turned west and the lazy Suwanee was pointed out. Here again the chorus came in to sing "Way Down Upon the Suwanee River." Then came detailed descriptions of Tallahassee and Pensacola.

The narrator seemed to be well informed as a professional tourist guide. He mentioned every industry and resource in the state, a point of interest, and he was complete accuracy—but he was absolutely silent on the subject of "defense." He did not mention Camp Blanding, McCall Field, the Naval Training Station or Naval Air Base—probably because he didn't consider them worth mentioning. The program, an announcer advised, was from BERN-LIN—a "greeting," he said "to all our DEAR FRIENDS in Beautiful Florida." It appears that the German Luftwaffe is well posted on this state—maybe it's time we took Marquette and Dakar—the next German planes may not be "imaginary."

Cane cutters in the plantations of the United States Sugar Corporation put away their cane knives for another season last week, ending the greatest harvest season in the history of the Everglades sugar production from the standpoint of sugar produced.
